

Namaste, Guest!

Thank you for choosing to stay with us. Red Earth Gokarna is a haven - with no other resort or fishing village in the vicinity - where you can breathe easy, slow down and let the magic of the Arabian Sea and our Honey Beach transport you to your happy place. We welcome you to open your heart, refresh, and heal while you explore the quaint towns of Gokarna and Ankola.

Let's Get To Know Each Other Better

We are delighted to have you over. Every new guest is an opportunity to share the experiences that our resort offers. While being committed to flawless hospitality, we are equally drawn to nature, wildlife and sustainability. How do we do it all?

- ≡ We work with the local Halakki Gowda and Siddhi communities, buying our produce from the Halakkis while sourcing seafood from the local fishing community.
- ≡ We also strive to make our workforce 90% local.
- ≡ Energy-efficient LED bulbs are used across the property.
- ≡ Our cottages have been built with natural stones like laterite.
- ≡ All our dry waste is segregated and composted.
- ≡ We have made our home a plastic-free zone with the usage of plastic bottles and bags being discouraged.
- ≡ All our sustainability efforts are channelled towards a residential school we run for 200 tribal children in Nilgiris, a 20 bedded hospital and an ambulance that makes healthcare accessible for tribes living in the remote parts of the jungle.

Meet Our Family

Our family of resorts was built from the combined effort of Ravi, Rachel, Aditya, and Ved. Driven by their passion for travel and nature, Red Earth is a testament to unpretentious hospitality from the heart while being dedicated to the local community and economy, and ecology.

Ravi

Ravi loves his garden and animals. It is not an uncommon sight to see him being followed by cats and chickens alike.

Rachel

Rachel is obsessed with dry toilets, proper diction and grammar, and loves her funny boards strewn around the property.

Aditya

A great wildlife photographer. An even better host with a keen interest in food, drink, and music.

Ved

An actor by profession. Our content writer by hobby.

Welcome To Our Home

We intend to make it feel like yours too.

Join us for a meal

Overlooking Honey Beach, all your meals are mindfully prepared with fresh ingredients sourced from our gardens or the local market. Dig in!

Yoga Studio With A View

A place to reconnect with yourself and nature, to stretch your toxins away while internalising the harmony around you.

Ayurveda Centre

Coming soon - a wellness centre with customized ayurvedic programs; a reason for you to take a road trip down here every weekend.

For The Beach Bums

Having access to an unexplored beach means much more than seclusion. In the morning, an opportunity to take long walks, to pick up a ball in the evening and play your favourite sport and ending all your days on a perfect note - gazing at stars in the night sky.

Come Learn Yoga With Us

Beginning September this year, we are providing an opportunity for yoga enthusiasts to make their love for yoga official. Master Ashtanga and Hatha Yoga with our 200 hours Yoga Teachers Training Program led by Chidananda Bubanale. This also includes 100 hours of yoga for relaxation.

At the end of the course, participants will receive an international teaching certificate from Yoga Alliance, UK. For more information on registering, please contact our reception desk.

We Recommend

- ≡ Chill on our beach - the sands are pristine, the waters safe and it may be days before you find another human wander here. Not kidding. Unlike the more commercial beaches of Gokarna like Kudle and Om, Honey Beach remains unexplored and therefore secluded.
- ≡ Taking the beautiful barge ride from Gangavalli River to the quaint coastal village of Manjaguni, 4.5 km away from our resort. The Gangavalli sits less than five minutes away from the resort. The barge is available between 07:00 to 19:00 hours.
- ≡ Go hiking in the Western Ghats with a picnic basket of sandwiches and cold beer, packed lovingly for you by us.
- ≡ Rent motorbikes and discover Gokarna at your own pace. And remember to strap your helmets on!

Begin your adventure. In case you have questions, please get in touch with our reception staff.
