TADOBA · MAHARASHTRA · INDIA

Red Earth Tadoba

As close to the wild as you can get.

A biodiversity hotspot hotspot

The largest and oldest national park in Maharashtra — cradled by forested hills, fed by the Tadoba and Kolsa lakes and the Andhari river.

Since Kolsa village was relocated from the Zari Gate, tiger sightings have risen sharply.

MARSH CROCODILE, ANDHARI RIVER

01 — THE RESERVE

The legend of Taru

The Gond kings once ruled these forests; Taru, their chief, fell in a mythic encounter with a tiger. His shrine still stands beneath a great tree on the banks of Lake Tadoba — honoured each year with a tribal fair.

— 02 — THE RESORT

Built of the earth

The only resort at the Zari Gate — 15 acres and 19 luxury cottages strung along the river that runs through the property.

- The largest cottages in Tadoba — 1,000 sq ft each, with a private wade pool.
- Raised from fly ash and local soil, roofed in bamboo and elephant grass, floored in stone — dying crafts, kept alive .

Our commitment

- Forests on all three sides — and no pesticide, ever.
- 350 species of fruiting trees, alive with birds, butterflies and bees.
- Water treated and returned by drip irrigation, rainwater rainwater harvested, and powered by the sun.
